OUR SELECTION

Like all Meggiolaro products, this porchetta also stands out for the absence of preservatives and additives. What distinguishes this porchetta from the others is the type of cooking that gives the colour and scent of a roast while maintaining a buttery texture inside

CURIOSITY

Alessandro Meggiolaro chooses pigs of Dutch origin for the production of his porchetta because they guarantee him the right proportion of fat and lean part, and a pleasant pink colour of the meat. The cooking takes place in 5 phases for a total of about 25 hours with a dry temperature of about 80 ° C; a cooking similar to that of the roast that gives a tender, elegant and delicate product

SUGGESTIONS

It can be warmed up but it is delicious also at ambient temperature. Delicious in a sandwich but also if paired with a sparkling wine made with the 'champenoise' method
